

Home Page

- Class information including: Professor, class name, meeting times
- Basic description of the class, maybe with its learning objectives
- Perhaps an opening video of what film noir is

Aspects

- Use and accordion or tab JavaScript to display different aspects of film noir
- Each aspect will have a definition, and link(s) to articles/films/notes that they are mentioned

Articles, Films, Notes => have a Reference Bar linking each page to affiliated pages within the website, each link opening in new tab to prevent the viewer to lose their place on the original page.

Articles

- First page will have sub-navigation site-map map
- Basic breakdown of what to expect on each page

Articles::Page

- Each article page will have a sub-navigation connection with other available article pages
- On the main portion of the page there will be the title of article, author, link to original article and then bulleted reformatted version of the original article with personal headers

Films

- Main page: same as Articles –sub-nav site map and breakdown of what to expect

Films::Pages

- Each article page will have a sub-navigation connection with other available article pages
- Div box with name of film, Film poster, and main associated film people
- Trailer of the film
- Have a gallery of sorts with clips, utilizing either or <table> to show descriptive text links on one side that displays the video clip on the other
- Include discussion questions or comments when available

Notes

- Main page – sub-nav site-map, page break down

Notes::Pages

- Title of Notes – what movie and or topic the lecture is on
- Typed notes

About

- A little bit about myself and how much experience I possess
- A small blurb on the project
- A sub-nav of other websites I have either finished or are currently working on

Contact

- A contact form where viewers can give feedback, suggestions, comments, etc.

Wire Frame of 'Film Noir'

